This book tells the story of what one year in Viet Nam as a combat engineer was like. Based off over 500 color slides taken by the author, along with 50 letters home, the resulting commentary is factual, highly detailed, occasionally humorous, and sometimes painful to read and see. In December 1967 when the Tet Offensive began, the author was helping build a Special Forces base camp in the path of the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The resulting clash between the Special Forces and the North Vietnamese Army flowing through the jungle around the camp is told here in riveting detail. This book gives the reader a unique, detailed look into the Viet Nam war experience.
